

Marlene Legare, CFP

From: Marlene Legare, CFP [mlegare@telus.net]
Sent: Wednesday, January 18, 2006 10:44 AM
To: 'Lynda Staub'; 'Jerry/Sheila Bouchard'; 'Claire Demery'; 'Helene Johnson'
Subject: RE: Dad's Birthday

Lynda,

Missing the point here. The doctor was ready to release Dad the second time around when Andy told him there was something not quite right with Dad because he knows him very well.

You can't expect visitors to really notice any change in him do you? though you mentioned they all noticed that Dad was speaking quickly but they don't LIVE with him.

His roommate who knows him and his mannerisms sounded the alarm to Andy on Tuesday night that something was wrong and out of character indicating further complications.

That is my point, someone who is closest reported it to Andy who chose to ignore the call. He did not check it out or have anyone check out Garth's concerns – so what good is a contact who won't take a call to a family member seriously?

That is my point. Dad was driving around when possibly he should not have been and could have caused an accident or killed himself as Garth found issues with Dad when he came out and expressed those specific issues with Andy who chose to ignore it. Or worse died in his sleep from the concussion as something was going on that should not have been and he needed to monitored if that where the case, there might have been more bleeding going on inside or whatever, a growing blood tumour, anything was possible but something was not right.

It's fine to say acquaintances are dropping in, etc., even the doctor but she does not live with Dad and would not notice anything out of the ordinary like a roommate would. Garth must of been frustrated that his call was not taken seriously – that is my point not all the rest.

That is MY POINT.....

Marlene

From: Lynda Staub [mailto:lstaub@skyweb.ca]
Sent: Tuesday, January 17, 2006 9:20 PM
To: Jerry/Sheila Bouchard; Claire Demery; Helene Johnson; Marlene Legare, CFP
Subject: Re: Dad's Birthday