

Marlene Legare, CFP

From: Daniel Jones-Dill [danieljonesdill@telus.net]
Sent: Saturday, May 12, 2007 12:14 PM
To: Marlene Legare
Subject: Fw: Dad

----- Original Message -----

From: "Marlene Legare, CFP" <mlegare@telus.net>
To: "Lynda Staub" <lstaub@skyweb.ca>
Sent: Monday, January 09, 2006 1:05 PM
Subject: Re: Dad

> Quoting Lynda Staub <lstaub@skyweb.ca>:

>
>> Hi Marlene - Went to see Dad at noon today - he was in a good mood and >> we >> had lunch with Wilf in the TV lounge area.
>>
>> The nurse said that last night he had his bed covered with food and is >> more >> unpredictable as the day goes on.
>>
>> On Friday night he locked himself in the bathroom for over 2 hours and >> would >> not come out. Andre and Angela finally left and the nurses said they >> were >> able to unlock the door and would get him to bed. So Dad will remain at >> the
>> Grace for the foreseeable future.
>>
>> He will not be allowed to leave the hospital .. nor given a day pass..
>> until >> he improves so >> for his birthday on Jan 22 we will bring cake and tell everyone to meet >> us in >> the cafeteria to celebrate his birthday.
>>
>> The nurses hid his phone today because he was out of hand with the phone >> so
>>
>>

TO GET AWAY FROM
ANDY & ANGIE'S
REPAIR WORK
AFTER HOURS!

----- Original Message -----

From: Marlene Legare, CFP

To: 'Lynda Staub'

Cc: Helene Johnson ; Claire Demery ; Jerry & Sheilah Bouchard

Sent: Tuesday, January 17, 2006 10:01 PM

Subject: RE: Dad's Birthday

The email starts at the bottom of the page.....

Lynda,

Were you aware that Dad was left alone on Saturday, after a serious concussion, to fend for himself, after he left the hospital very white and shaky, after almost dieing in Emergency, according to the nurses who told him that later, and after being unconscious for over 1/2 hour and loosing the amount of blood that he did? We know the hospitals now-a-days discharge patients way too soon assuming they are getting care at home?

Now tell me, wouldn't any responsible son/daughter ensure that their Dad was monitored for the first day or so if he was left on his own as you hear case after case of people dieing from concussions.

Remember Baseball Chabot? That is exactly what happened to him, he was not taken to the hospital quick enough and later died unnecessarily.....

Who knew Dad was home alone or asked to look after him or keep a close eye where they?

Someone told me that they went to visit Dad on Monday and were disturbed enough with the change they saw that they tried to get hold of you but did not have your telephone #and where trying to get your# but did not have it.

They told me they where that concerned and knew the gravity of the situation and that he needed further medical attention. Dad supposedly did not answer his cell for the next few days.....

So he was not receiving the help that he needed at that crucial time after his injury.

Also Dad's roommate Garth called Andy Bouchard on Tuesday night to express his concern, i.e. Dad was leaving his van lights on, and other unusual behaviour (but par for the course for a head injury meaning complications).

Andy told someone, officially, that "for whatever reason" he chose not follow up. The next contact with

Also when I left Andy, said that under no circumstances was he returning home. Simply he did not want him to go back home. Lynda you told me legally Andy owned the place and that his arrangement with Dad to live out his last years there was only verbal!

Let me tell you about common law Lynda. My past courses and recent enquiries tells me that verbal agreement is good in a court of law – especially with your very own father! If that were the case, then Andy can give back the farm to Dad, Dad can make payments to him like Andy did and Dad can finish of the rest of his days there as agreed upon years ago. In the meantime, Dad can go and subdivide more lots and make money as well. So that is what I think of renegeing on an agreement to your father. If Dad has outlived Andy's expectations, then so be it! That was the agreement at the time and still stands today.

So if Dad has to have home support at home, until such time as there is an opening at the Elie Manor, IF that is Dad's choice, then so be it! Andy is out of line saying that Dad can never return. That is not even his call, name on title or not. Morally, as well as legally, this is wrong!

Does Andy want the whole community coming against him? Think not! This won't even be Doreen's doing if he does that as I believe both you and Andy got an idea of what can happen if Dad is not treated properly. Remember St. Eustache and Elie are keeping a close eye on him and what is happening with him every step of the way...you can attest to the three hours of answering phone calls you told me Lynda, and Andre had a knock on the door from Roland Bouchard. That is just the start if Dad is not treated fairly...that was not a pleasant experience was it?

Don't think anyone would be too sympathetic with Andy's lack of care when he got the call to help Dad back to the hospital which Andy chose to totally ignore and which was 100% totally wrong....

So, reality is reality. Andy's true colours showed themselves. That is why I do not wish for Andy to be the contact person. He did nothing when contacted. If you like, you may ask Claire to be contact. That is my vote if she will accept or myself, that is fine. Or would you prefer Doreen? Don't think so... You can poll others in the family to ask for their opinion, so long as their heart is in the right place, it would be fine with me.

Marlene

Again, I have not e-mailed Andy as he has told me he does not wish to be emailed, but is welcome to this email so we are all on the same page.

Marlene Legare

From: [REDACTED] >
Date: Saturday, May 12, 2007 11:07 AM
To: "Marlene Legare" <mlegare@telus.net>
Subject: Fw: dad

----- Original Message -----

From: Marlene Legare, CFP
To: 'Staub, Lynda (TPR)'; Helene Johnson; 'Jerry & Sheila Bouchard'
Cc: Claire Demery; Leona Bouchard; 'Doreen Bouchard'
Sent: Thursday, January 26, 2006 12:33 PM
Subject: RE: dad

Lynda,

Wrong! Garth told me he had no complaints with Dad's housekeeping. Didn't you tell me that Dad's medication was off also - so that would have been the reason for his being off. If it is people that he needs around him, why was he left on his own the weekend of his accident - so he could die? Who was caring then? Who didn't give a shit whether he lived or died? Why didn't he go to someone's home that night? Is it because he is older that he can be pushed aside. Is that what you want your kids to do with you when you are older? It appears that neither you or Andy did care after you left him at home "alone" because you didn't make sure he was taken care of at that point when he ALMOST DIED! If it were your child, husband or anyone else, that would have been standard to ensure they were monitored the first couple days - where was your concern then? That is when he needed 24/7 care not now, now he needs recuperating time - alone! ... In peace.

Garth told me he is 45 and Dad is running circles around him daily, with the energy he has especially for his age. He thought Dad was in his mid 60's. You saw how he keeps going in the hospital, he has to use up his energy. How is he going to do that in a small room? When HE IS READY he can decide. Not because you and Andy want him out of the way do you ship him off at the first convenient occasion. He has a RIGHT to be at HOME. Let that be his decision, not the two of you railroading him off the family farm he lived all his life. You want him gone because of his age? I know a lot of healthy 90 year olds running their own lives, living on their own and enjoying life to the fullest. Dad told me in Elie at the Manor everyone knows everyone's business. Do you think he wants everyone minding his business when he is quite capable of making his own decisions?

Dad put in a new floor just a while ago according to Garth, fixed the furnace and hot water tank, in other words additional costs. Isn't that Andy's responsibility if he owns the building? Refer to the landlord/tenant act as he stands to benefit from it.

If you are concerned about his falling, they do have a life support that you put around your neck and that he can push the button and it calls for help if he needs it. A lot of my elderly clients use them nowadays. Being in a manor won't make a difference if he is in a closed up room.

You told me that Dad gets depressed closer to Christmas. Could he be thinking of family members who have died in his family at that time, like Uncle Roger, Beatrice, etc.? Do you think changing locations would much matter? Isn't November just before Christmas? What difference would that make? Just means he really cared about the people he loved and that he remembers them at that time of year. Normal isn't it?

12/26/2009

1 clarify.

2 THE COURT: Yes.

3 THE ACCUSED: I think the fact that I moved away
4 to B.C. has been held against me with my family as far as
5 having a voice, in, in speaking for my mom and dad.

6 This all started back in January, when my brother
7 phoned me to tell me he was committing my dad after he took 8 a fall, and I didn't see that that was the case. I came 9 out, investigated and found out -- my brother told me at 10 that point that he was not going to allow my dad to ever
11 move back home.

12 In questioning my sister, Lynda Staub, she told
13 me that, yes, she was aware there was a verbal agreement
14 that Dad could remain at his farm home of 52 years, but 15 that it was only verbal, so, in essence, I discovered that 16 they were trying to evict my dad. They proceeded to do
17 this. This was back and forth.

18 My brother was charged with theft, and then he 19 started the police harassment against me to keep me out of 20 the province so I would not take my dad to a lawyer.

21 My dad had indicated to me that he did not want
22 to be moved from his home. My brothers and sisters signed
23 an agreement agreeing to that January 30th. The minute I
24 left to go to B.C., they reneged and moved him out of his 25 home to rental housing.

26 Then to make sure I did not come back to B.C.
27 (sic), they included my mom, so -- and they basically 28 tricked her into signing a form saying she did not want to 29 see me. That wasn't the case. Contact was allowed. But 30 the condition for me to come and visit my mom with respect
31 to her cancer and how things were progressing, they wanted
32 that removed, so, in essence, keeping me out of the 33 province so I could not help my dad. The two were 34 intertwined.